AIA/CES Registered Provider Program Summary

Provider: DEMILEC (USA) LLC

Length: 2 Hour

Program #: DL200

Credits: 2 LU Hours

Program: Spray Foam Insulation; An Integral Part of the Building Performance

HSW: Yes

Description: Participants of this course will gain additional information and insight into the impact of spray foam insulation on the building performance. In addition to the thermal performance of spray foam insulation, this course will discuss the benefits on moisture control, indoor air quality, sound attenuation, and overall comfort of the buildings.

How Taught: The CES facilitator utilizes a PowerPoint or slide presentation to provide an in-depth overview for how to specify low density spray foam insulation. It will be an interactive session that encourages feedback and questions.

Learning Objectives: After completion of this course, participants will be able to:

A/V Needs: Electrical power and screen for the PowerPoint slide or presentation. The CES facilitator will supply the laptop and projector.

- Discuss the benefits on moisture control, indoor air quality, sound attenuation, the proliferation of molds and mildew and overall comfort of buildings the use spray foam insulation
- Discuss the basic building sciences of residential construction regarding the proper sizing of the HVAC system.
- Know the usage and design applications for low density and medium density spray foam insulation.
- Learn the difference between low density and medium density spray foam insulation.

Target Audience: Architects, specifiers, engineers and other design professionals. The ideal audience size can be 10-40 people. This program is basic and meets the needs of professionals at every experience level.

Facilitator Qualifications: All DEMILEC (USA) facilitators have been trained on CES guidelines and presentation skills. In addition, they receive continuous in-depth training in the field and are considered industry experts.
